Notes from Father Walsh

Baptisms: I checked the baptismal registry, and it looks like the first baptism in the parish for 2019 will occur next Sunday. I'm baptizing Jackson Reed Draeger, son of Jason and Jessica Draeger. Exciting. I love baptisms.

If your family had a baptism in this calendar year, please let me know. I've updated the other sacramental registries, and want to make sure I haven't missed any baptism entries.

It is my assumption that we may have missed a record or two. Kind of hope this is the case. Jackson needs some classmates! Which is a soft way of encouraging our parents that the greatest gift we can give our children is a brother or sister. I have eight sisters, and am richly blessed.

Holy Day Mass Schedules: I apologize for failing to get the Holy Day Mass schedule in last weekend's bulletin. This won't happen again. The crowds were light, so I want to ask, is 6:30AM, 8:00AM and 6:30PM a convenient schedule for the Holy Days? Let me know if another schedule is more helpful.

Our Patron St. James: I bought some letterhead for the parish, and it should arrive in a few days. It has a red ink coloring across the top, like a brush stroke, and a small solid block of red across the bottom. The paper is white. I think you'll like it when you get your first letter from me! The red is a reminder of St. James, the first martyr among the apostles. In some way, his patronage is an inspiration and an invitation to us, to be firm in our faith, to lay down our lives for one another, to "drink the chalice" offered to us in imitation of Christ.
